ITALIAN TROOPS ON GREEK BORDER

French Guns Point Toward Italy—As small nations of the Mediterranean teem with suspense and await Italy's next move of aggression, theie warships of France's Atlantic fleet maneuver in the inland sea . . . ready to join with Britain's navy at Gibraltar and the Suez Canal for a blockade of Italy and the sea.

$6768 LYNN LOOT COMES IN THE MAIL

This business of placing faith is becoming a little unnerving to officials of the Covert Armed Car Service of Lynn.

First the officials had faith in Clayton Martin, 21-year-old bridegroom, only to have him allegedly vanish last week with $9893.06, a payroll entrusted to the service for delivery.

Today a package was received by the company from Baltimore—and when the officials opened it they were astounded to discover that Martin had faith enough in the United States mails to return $6768 of the money by ordinary mail.

Police Inspector William Kane of Lynn said the package had been addressed by the missing clerk, although he aparently had attempted to disguise his handwriting.

Subtracting $6768 from the total of $9893.06 gave the officials $3125.06 as the balance of the missing money, but they feel it would be pressing faith a trifle too close to the line if they expect that to come back—say, by carrier pigeon or something.

A warrant, charging larceny against Martin, has been issued in Lynn, and meanwhile his young bride of three months, the former Helen Dejowski of Lynn, is grief-stricken at her home.

Martin vanished Wednesday night after apparently placing the money, to be transferred Thursday to a Peabody leather company, in the Covert Armored Car Service safe.

Wife Hysterical In Court Hearing

Disrupting proceedings, Mrs. Evelyn Gaviani, 45, of Haverhill, became hysterical today in probate court while awaiting hearing on her petition for separate support from Ernest Gaviani of Burrell street, Roxbury.

Judge William M. Prest was hearing another case when Mrs. Gaviani, seated beside a woman friend, began to sway and shriek.

Court Officer Sylvester Colbert carried her into the corridor, where she continued shrieking despite several lusty slaps administered by the woman friend.

The hysterical plaintiff finally was calmed by Matron Katherine Joyce.

Later the separate support case was heard and Mrs. Gaviani was awarded $100, to be paid within a month, and $10 a week.

DUCE POURS ARMY ALONG GREEK LINE

ROME, April 11 (INS)—Intense Italian military activity was authoritatively reported near the Greek border in occupied Albania today. Reliable advices said the troop movements were occurring at Korizza at the entrance of the valley which leads from Albania into Salonika, Greece.

Four columns of troops, these reports stated, including motorized tank units, were converging upon Korizza, where detachments of Italians arrived by airplane yesterday.

Four ships carrying troops, gasoline, trucks and ammunition left Brandisi at dawn.

Britain Masses War Fleet Off Greek Isle

LONDON, April 11 (AP)—The British Mediterranean fleet, hastily mustered from scattered ports, steamed today toward a rendezvous said by the admiralty to be at Malta, in a show of power apparently intended to reassure the Balkans against any aggressive designs of the Rome-Berlin axis.

It was believed the destination of the fleet was in the waters off the Greek island of Corfu, seizure of which, Prime Minister Chamberlain was reported yesterday to have warned Italy, would be a cause for war.

Meanwhile, the British foreign office drafted from the prime minister a declaration of protection for Greece and Turkey as an aftermath to Italy's seizure of Albania.

Preparations to include these two countries in the "stop Hitler" bloc were formulated as it was reported in London that Rumania, through Foreign Minister Grigore Gafencu, had accepted a British offer of a mutual Anglo-Rumanian defense pact similar to the one concluded between Britain and Poland last week.

QUEEN ORDERS TROOPS

Tension that has seized Europe was symbolized in two other widely separated countries—The Netherlands and Britain's vital Mediterranean base, Island of Malta.

Queen Wilhelmina decreed that border battalions take up arms as a precautionary measure because, as an official statement asserted:

"The actual international situation contains war danger."

The call was effective yesterday.

"The Netherlands can now meet

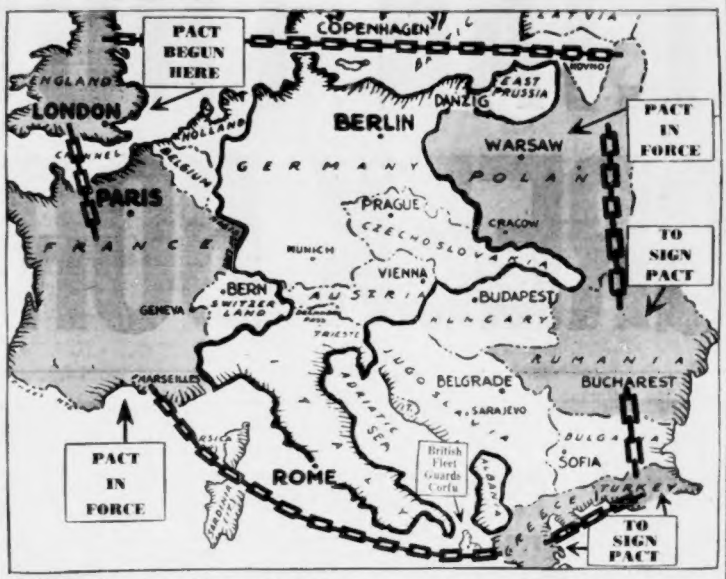
Britain 'Circles' Germany, Italy With Pacts



CHAINS—Like a huge chain wound about Germany and Italy are Britain's defensive pacts, some in force, others on the verge of being formed. France and England are the bulwarks of the plan, with Greece reported already in and Poland definitely committed to it. Turkey and Rumania are reported ready to sign on the dotted line. Thus Hitler and Il Duce find themselves circled by a cautious Europe.

Charging that the ranks of the American Federation of Labor have been infiltrated here in Massachusetts by scores of Communists, using bogus names to gain membership—and that even ministers and professors have been tools of the Communist party—ex-Senator Sybil Holmes, of Brookline, threw a meeting of the joint legislative Committee on Legal Affairs into an uproar today.

Miss Holmes, chairman of last year's recess committee investigating subversive groups throughout the state, added that thousands of dollars have been collected here, ostensibly to promote world peace, but actually to effect the overthrow of the democratic form of government.

Sybil Holmes

"And she charged that new groups, under new names, are this very minute spreading propaganda here which had its origin in Soviet Russia.

SAYS OPERATIONS SECRET

Her charges came as the high point of the morning session of the committee, gathered to consider six bills, offered by Representative Philip A. Sherman of Somerville, Republican, and Representative Edward A. Sirois of Lawrence, Republican floor leader, which have been designed to make continuance of such activities impossible.

"The Communist party's operations here in Massachusetts have been covered up," said Miss Holmes.

"Its leaders have even gone to the extreme of calling upon ministers of the gospel, social leaders and professors to act as 'front men' for them.

"It is a definite, well-formed plot to overthrow democratic government.

"Our first move to curb them must be one designed to end the

Joan Crawford Goes To Court, Gets Decree

LOS ANGELES, April 11—Glamorous Joan Crawford, big-eyed and dressed in an orchid-colored outfit, came to court unexpectedly today and obtained a divorce from Actor Franchot Tone.

The slender screen star took her public by surprise, for she was slated to appear April 18, after her failure to obtain her freedom by deposition.

Miss Crawford won her decree today in a very brief hearing before Judge Benjamin Scheinman.

She charged that Tone was unsympathic with her career; that when she wanted to stay at home and study script, he wanted to go out and have a good time.

VICTORY FOR CAREER

In short, she said, Franchot and her career wouldn't mix, so she decided she couldnt go on with both. Tone lost out, and career won.

She was demure and a lovely picture for the news photagraphers as she took the witness tand.

She charged mental cruelty.

When this was presented, a superior judge said he would like to see as well as heare the actress and refused to consider her "deposition appearance."

VISITED TONE IN N. Y.

California law permits testimony by deposition in event the complainant is absent from the country.

"We don't want the rest of the country to get the impression that California gives mail order divorces," said the court.

Miss Crawford, in New York and visiting her actor-husband, said she would return for the requested appearance.

A previous marriage of Miss Crawford to Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., also ended in divorce.

Sentenced to Prison

MRS. ELMA N. LAUER
Gets Prison Term in Smuggling

Judge's Wife Jailed With 'Master Mind' Of Smuggling Plot

NEW YORK, April 11 (INS)—The federal government's most sensational smuggling probe and prosecution ended today with imposition of a five-year prison term and $5000 fine on Albert N. Chaperau and a three-month jail sentence and $2500 fine for Mrs. Elma Lauer, wife of a New York Supreme Court justice.

Chaperau was the master mind of the smuggling racket which involved Jack Benny and George Burns, comedians, and Mrs. Lauer, and he drew the stiffest penalty of the quartet.

Chaperau was sentenced by Federal Judge Hulbert shortly after Federal Judge Vincent Leibell had disposed of Mrs. Lauer's case. It was Judge Leibell who also passed sentence on Benny.

Burns was fined $8000 and Benny $10,000, and duties and penalties in their cases ran into additional thousands, but both were put on probation and ot required to serve even so much as a day of their year and a day sentences behind bars.

Branded "a vain and foolish woman" by her own counsel, Mrs. Lauer, pale and trembling, looked appealingly at her husband, who sat stern-faced within the courtroom railing while sentence was passed.

"Insane vanity," counsel termed her love for pretty clothes which tempted her to cheat the government of customs duties.

There was no mercy in the statement or voice of U. S. Attorney John T. Cahill as he demanded a jail penalty for the offense. Mrs. Lauer, he told the court, had twice been arrested for smuggling and had over a period of years evaded duties on $24,811 worth of finery.

While the government's counsel talked, Mrs. Lauer sat as if in a daze. Her husband occasionally patted her arm and once he whispered:

"Brace up, honey—it won't be long!"

Baby May Balk Moore Divorce

Born to Mrs. Marianne Moore, 32, divorced wife of Raymond Moore, director of the Cape Playhouse at Dennis, a sleepy, blue-eyed baby boy less than two weeks old, who may live to be the central figure in a case that will make court history in Massachusetts.

Confirming the birth of the "controversy baby," attorneys for Mrs. Moore disclosed they will make it basis for a petition seeking revocation of the divorce granted her husband by Judge Collen C Campbell in Barnstable court on Feb 15.

CHARGED CRUELTY

"Mr. Moore charged cruel and abusive treatment from May to August in 1938," declared Atty. George A. Cataldo. "We denied this but contended that, even if true, Moore had condoned it by having marital relations after that time, and his wife was in delicate health at the time of the trial.

"The birth of the baby would seem to prove that we were right.

"Mrs. Moore testified that she was in delicate health, but she was unwilling to undergo examination, as she already had an affidavit from her own physician in New York testifying to her condition.

2 Newton Schoolgirls Reported Missing

Parents of two Newton Center junior high school girls who, friends believe, may have gone to New York in search of World's Fair jobs, asked Newton police today to search fo rthe youngsters. Both were reported missing since last night.

COLLAPSES IN COURT—Pleading guilty to second degree murder in Dedham court of Eugene Vespaziani, fatally wounded last November in Quincy Cemetery, Mrs. Frances Haggair, 57, of South Braintree, collapsed when told her plea meant life imprisonment.

Cemetery Slayer Swoons in Court; Sentence Delayed

Told that her agreement to plead guilty to second degree murder meant she would be locked up for life, Mrs. Frances Haggair, 57, South Braintree, collapsed today in Superior Court at Dedham.

Judge Frank J. Donahue had just agreed to accept such a plea in connection with the revolver slaying of her former son-in-law, Eugene Vespaziani, 36, of East Milton.

He was fatally shot last November 18 as he marched in his uncle's funeral procession at St. Mary's Cemetery, West Quincy.

Mrs. Vespaziani

First woman to face a Norfolk county court on a first degree murder charge in 22 years, Mrs Haggair was apparently calm today when District Attorney Edmund R. Dewing opened proceedings with a recommendation that she be allowed to plead guilty to second degree murder.

Judge Donahue agreed, but said he would prefer to have her make the changed plea herself.

She was called to the bench and Judge Donahue said to her:

"You understand this plea means you will be locked up for the rest of your life?"

"No," she replied.

Her daughter, Lydia, divorced wife of the slain man, was called to the bench to confer with the defendant, but as the daughter reached the mother's side the latter collapsed.

Court attendants carried Mrs. Haggair to an anteroom, where she was revived.

Judge Donahue said he would receive her plea later in the day if she had sufficiently recovered.

TRAGEDY MARKS DIVORCE

According to police, the brief, unhappy marriage of Vespaziani and Lydia Haggair was the motive for the shooting. The couple were divorced in 1931.

The victim's brother, Raymond, said he knocked the revolver from Mrs. Haggair's hand as Eugene

TELLS OF KNOX 'THREAT'

On the day Mrs. Helen Darragh Dale, Charlestown divorcee, was fatally shot, former State Trooper George T. Knox's voice, behind a closed apartment door, told an unseen woman, "——— ——— you, you ———————————, I'll fix you!" a state witness testified in Suffolk superior court today.

The witness, Mrs. Edith Belcher, said the next thing she heard was a noise that sounded like a revolver shot.

For hours previously, she testified she had listened to an increasingly bitter quarrel between Knox and a woman companion.

HEARD WOMAN'S CRIES

The quarrel was climaxed, Mrs. Belcher said, when the woman's voice shouted:

"Let me out of here. You let me out."

It sounded as if the woman then had beat on the closed apartment door with her fists, Mrs. Belcher testified.

She said she was in an apartment diagonally across from that occupied by Knox in a Commonwealth avenue house.

According to Mrs. Belcher's testimony, the quarrel between Knox and the unseen woman went on all afternoon, May 22, 1937, and appeared to be over money.

"You give me my money. You promised you would," the woman's voice said once, Mrs. Belcher testified.

WROTE TO JUDGE

She said she had leased the apartment she was occupying that day under the assumed name of Alice Lavalle. She used that name in the dressmaking business, she testified.

Mrs. Belcher said she wrote a letter to Municipal Court Judge Charles L. Carr telling him what she heard in the Commonwealth avenue apartment house.

Judge Carr reopened investigation of Mrs. Dale's death, with the result that former Trooper Knox was indicted for murder.

Mrs. Belcher was produced today as admitted "star witness" for the state in Knox's trial.

Ole Bill Back

LONDON, April 11 (AP)—Great Britain today signed up "Ole Bill," Bruce Bairnsfather's famous walrus-moustached cartoon character of World War days recruiting posters, in an effort to increase enlistments for the territorial army.

Bairnsfather said his revived "Ole Bill" would have to have grey hair and would be shown advising youngsters to enlist.

HONOR GOVERNORS' WIVES

Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, wives of the governors of Rhode Island and Massachusetts, will be guests today at a luncheon and bridge of the Eleventh Norfolk Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts, to be held at Weber Duck Inn, Wrentham.

Man's Footprint Clue in Slaying of 9-Yr.-Old Girl

SPARTANBURG, S. C., April 11 (AP)—A plaster cast of a man's footprint gave officers a possible clue today in the strange death of a nine-year-old girl whose rock-covered body was found in a small stream near the Enoree Mill village.

The girl, Goldie Mae Chapman, left her home Saturday afternoon to go to a store to buy some Easter egg dye. She did not return and a search was started.

Her body was found hours later. Besides the footprint, near the girl's body, officers were examining a stick, cut with a knife from a black haw shrub, on the bank of the stream for fingerprints.

The stick was about four feet long and one and one-half inches in diameter.

ELOPING HUB BOY, GIRL, SEIZED ON HOLDUP CHARGE

MONTPELIER, Vt., April 11—Sent "back to the farm" by his father following a minor difficulty, Richard Monroe, 22-year-old Boston youth, found himself in real trouble today.

He and a blonde, an attractive girl, Eileen Tyler, 20, were locked up in Washington County jail, facing robbery charges in municipal court.

The couple, who police say were on an elopement, had been seized a few hours earlier at Lebanon, N. H.

Their arrests came on the heels of an alarm for a "Dillinger wooden gun bandit" who last night looted a Montpelier drug store of $68 in a daring stickup.

FATHER TO AID BOY

Returned here, Monroe told a story of romance on the farm where his father had sent him and the elopement which was frustrated by Lebanon police, according to authorities.

"We needed the money to get married in Boston," he said, according to High Sheriff Henry Larson. "We wanted to get away to the city and be happy. I guess I didn't know what I was doing."

RICHARD MONROE
Held in Robbery

In Boston, his father, Arthur B. Monroe of Peterboro street, Back Bay, prepared to go to his son's aid.

"He had been in a little scrape here and I thought it would be good for him to be on a quiet farm," the father said. "I sent him up to his mother's folks at Randolph, Vt., last August and he has been a good boy ever since."

ROMANCE HITS SNAG

It was on the farm he met Eileen and dreamed the dreams that led them both to dash off 30 miles to Montpelier Sunday night.

But here, according to police, their pastoral romance struck a financial snag. Both were without money.

Soon after, police charge, John Slafter, drug clerk, looked up to face a carved wooden pistol, painted black, and the demand:

"Give us everything you've got."

Slafter did and soon the police teletype flashed a message to all New England states to pick up a youth and girl who waited for him outside the drugstore.

The two young elopers pleaded innocent in court to a charge of robbery not with a dangerous weapon and were lodged in county jail in lieu of $2500 bail.

Tri-State Truck Strike Settled

PROVIDENCE, April 11 (AP)—Termination of a 23-day-old truck strike in southern New England was announced today by Harvey Saul, state director of labor for Rhode Island.

Trucks, he said, would begin operation at 4 p. m. today, pending ratification of a tentative agreement.

Saul's announcement came after an all-night meeting in the hotel suite of Governor Vanderbilt.

Affected by the strike were 10,000 drivers and 1200 truck owners in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

It was understood that one question still remained unsettled. This was a demand by the union that three big trucking firms who have brought suits for damages aggregating $900,000 against the union in federal courts in Boston and in New Haven drop those suits.

13 Veterans of '61 Rally Again At 73rd State Encampment

Finally there were 13 gathered there in the oval room at the Bradford for the 73rd annual encampment of the Massachusetts Department of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Eleven were there when the meeting opened a little after 10 a. m. Then George Alden came—all the way from New Bedford, as a matter of fact, despite his 97 years—and Julius Fitts arrived from Medfield.

The latter hadn't been to an encampment in three years, and everyone was glad to see him. Been South, he said, and is going back there. He looked fine.

RANKS GROW THINNER

Everyone was well pleased with the turnout. It isn't every state that can have so many. Last year, of course, there were 22—but that was last year.

There were 132 Union veterans in the state then, too, but there are only 89 now.

Next year—well, that will be next year.

There was a little confusion at the start on account of Commander Joseph F. Stoddard being in the hospital, but Senior Vice-Commander Charles A. Miles took the chair alongside of Assistant Adjutant-General George W. Green, and Mrs. Helen A. Phinney, the secretary and guardian angel of the whole outfit.

Acting Commander Miles got the meeting open, but Mrs. Phinney had to tell him to talk a little louder. He didn't understand at first, but when he did he asked Chaplain E. George Biddle to give a little prayer.

Chaplain Biddle is a very good prayer. Everybody sat quiet until he finished.

Secretary Phinney had a little trouble reading Commander Stoddard's annual report, but she had her handkerchief ready, and managed to choke through it—especially the part where he paid tribute to Judge Advocate William rt. Wormstead, who went along last August 16, and Quartermaster-General Edwin H. Lincoln, who followed him last October.

Comrade Wormstead enlisted in Company C of the 32d Massachusetts Infantry, was wounded at Petersburg, Va., and discharged for wounds Jan. 26, 1865.

He was 94 when he died.

DEATH MARCHES ON

Comrade Lincoln was a drummer boy with Company E of the Fifth Massachusetts Infantry.

"Good soldiers," said Secretary Phinney, reading the report, "Good citizens. They have passed to their reward. Lights out. Taps have sounded—"

She choked a little here—

"The comrades sleep . . ."

After the report, Assistant Adjutant-General Green nominated Acting Commander Miles for commander for next year. The members didn't understand at first, and Mrs. Phinney explained that they should vote on it. They did, and the vote was unanimous.

STILL "CARRY ON"

"I don't feel as good as I did a hundred years ago," said Comrade Miles, accepting the post, "and I've found that the older I get, the less I know.

"My hearing isn't very good, and my sight's not very good—but I'll do the best I can."

Comrade Hiram S. Faunce of Randolph, elected junior vice-commander, said:

"Remember what the old surgeon used to say in the war? If you can breathe you're alive, and I am going to keep on breathing."

Wife Sues 'Lost' Society Flier

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP)—The socially prominent wife of Andrew Carnegie Whitfield, who disappeared nearly a year ago, applied for a separation and alimony in Supreme Court today on the assumption that her husband is still alive.

Whitfield vanished April 15, 1938, after taking off from Roosevelt Field in a red monoplane for an unannounced destination. No trace of the young flier or his airplane has been found.

Mrs. Whitfield sought a decree on the grounds of abandonment. She testified that she and her husband had quarreled on the evening of April 14 and resumed the dispute next morning.

She said he telephoned her later, declaring he was going through with plans to leave.

STATE WAGE-HOUR BILLS ATTACKED

Proposed legislation regulating wages and hours in Massachusetts industry was attacked as "far too drastic" and "destructive to business" today, in a public hearing at the State House.

The hearing was in Gardner auditorium before the legislature's joint committee on labor and industries.

More than 400 were present, including former Governor Joseph B. Ely, who said he would oppose pending wage and hour bills on behalf of Massachusetts restaurant interests.

Under heaviest fire was a bill sponsored by Kenneth I. Taylor, secretary-treasurer and legislative agent of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor.

INDUSTRY FIGHTS BILL

The measure would set 35 cents an hour as the minimum wage in this state for the first year, beginning October 24, 1939; 40 cents an hour as a minimum for the second year, and 45 cents hour as minimum for successive years.

Maximum hours for the first year would be eight per day and 42 per week. Thereafter the maximum would be eight hours a day and 40 hours a week.

Attorney John L. Barnes, representing the Associated Industries of Massachusetts, said the Taylor bill would set up a "prohibitive differential" against Massachusetts industry in competition with industries in other states.

This differential would amount to five cents an hour the first year, ten cents an hour the second year and 15 cents an hour thereafter, he told the committee.

"Massachusetts industry simply couldn't stand it," he asserted.

He said the proposed law would go far beyond intent of the present federal law.

The latter exempts the fishing industry and industries connected with preparation of food for the public, but the proposed state law has no such exemptions, he charged.

OPPOSE JAIL TERMS

He also charged there was "animus" behind the Taylor bill, in that it would make jail sentences possible for offending employers whether their violations were "willful" or otherwise.

Representative John W. Lasell of Northbridge went on record as opposing the Taylor bill as "too drastic."

He said he believed no state legislation should go beyond the restrictions imposed by the federal wages and hours law.

Tague Denies 20 P. O. Firings

Postmaster Peter F. Tague today emphatically denied he had discharged 20 or more employes in the Boston postoffice or its departments for holding extra jobs.

He admitted there was talk of men holding jobs in the federal service and that he was interviewed by a newspaperman, but was misquoted. His statement to the reporter, he said, was:

"I could not at this moment say whether there were 12 or 20 men holding jobs in the Federal service (this postoffice department) or not. It's against Federal regulations for employes to hold jobs in the department and be employed on other work outside the department."

Pleads Not Guilty In West End Murder

Indicted, charged with the murder of Miss Nellie Harrington, 56, in a Brighton street, West End, lodging house on March 2, Louis Assali, 58, a railroad laborer, was arraigned in Suffolk superior court today.

He entered a plea of not guilty and asked to have a lawyer assigned to defend him.

Judge Frederick W. Foedick appointed Attorney Arthur M. Ilman.

use of false names. During our inquiry (the recess committee's investigation) we found that scores of Communists used false names to gain admission to the American Federation of Labor in order to destroy its principles. Yes, I mean the American Federation of Labor.

USED FALSE NAMES

"There were speeches, soap-box and otherwise, for the International Defense League. There is no member of that organization who ever gave speeches in Massachusetts who gave their right names.

"The money raised in the name of peace was used in an effort to incite to riot."

She was still on the rostrum when noon adjournment came.

The bills offered for consideration by Representative Sherman would make it a crime to advocate the overthrow of the government by violence, the raising of funds by subversive organizations, and for registration of the latter groups.

Representative Sirois' bills would prevent the use of false names, attacks upon individuals because of race, and parading of arms by any groups other than the government's armed forces, or the police.

Chinese Attack On 1300-Mile Front

SHANGHAI, April 11 (AP)—The Chinese reported tonight that their troops were conducting a series of attacks resembling a general offensive along a 1300-mile line extending from Shansi Province north of the Yellow river to the vicinity of Canton, in southern China.

SAVES CRIPPLE'S LIFE

LOWELL, April 11—Albert Soucy, a crippled youth, today owed his life to Patrolman Joseph Tarza, who carried him through flames that swept his home on Hall street. Twenty-two persons were driven out in the blaze, which caused estimated damage of $5000.

F. D. AGAIN ASKS FOR WPA CASH

WASHINGTON, April 11 (INS)—In a dramatic last-minute appeal, President Roosevelt today urged the Senate to appropriate a full $150,000,000 for WPA emergency relief, and, at the same time, made known his intentions to ask for a possible $1,500,000,000 more for relief for the next fiscal year.

The $150,000,000 would carry WPA through the current fiscal year.

President Roosevelt's insistence on the $150,000,000 for the period ending June 30, despite Senate moves to appropriate only $100,000,000, was made in a letter to Senator Pepper (D.) of Florida.

He read the President's letter to the Senate as it neared a vote on his amendment to increase the House-approved bill $50,000,000.

The letter said:

"My Dear Senator Pepper:

"In reply to your inquiry, I think there is nothing for me to add or to subtract from what I have made so clear on so many occasions since last January.

"The sole question of continuing relief to July first is one of arithmetic.

"If $100,000,000 is voted, between three and four hundred thousand fewer people can be given work relief than if $150,000,000 is voted—and in addition practically none of the seven or eight hundred thousand on the waiting list can be given employment.

"It seems to me that is the long and short of it.

"Very sincerely yours,
"FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT."

Lifer's Escape Under Probe

Searching inquiry into State Prison routine was launched today following the escape of Donald Ferguson, 32, brutal murderer and lifer, who walked unmolested through the prison gates only to be recaptured three hours later in Medford.

His brief freedom, ended before the drawn guns of Medford police, was prompted by a desire to see a sweetheart, according to the story he unfolded to police.

Prison authorities sought first of all the answer as to how he slipped through two gates and obtained a fully loaded .38 calibre revolver before he departed.

The Medford officers leaped from a cruising car to arrest him as he trudged toward Lowell, the home of his sweetheart.

Patriots Day Proclaimed

Formally proclaiming April 19 as Patriots' Day, Governor Saltonstall declared today.

"Our own internal problems, our sympathy with the difficulties of other nations, the struggle which yet may come—all warn us that we must continue to strive for the fruits of our liberties.

"The past has been glorious, let us make the future equally so. With sober pride let us prepare to celebrate the coming holiday," the governor added.

$20,000 P. O. Floor Map New Washington Headache

WASHINGTON, April 11 (AP)—The Postoffice Department—a stickler for geographical accuracy—faces the prospect of ripping up its $20,000 foyer floor or ignoring what's been happening abroad.

Here's the trouble:

Centerpiece of the building—one of the costliest in the capital—is a huge floor map of the world, built out of colored stone and set smack in the entrance.

It's the first thing a visitor sees—the blue, green, yellow and pink countries, all outlined in expensive granite with bronze edgings.

When the structure was built a few years ago, things were quiet in the old world. Italy's Ethiopian campaign hadn't started. Austria, Albania and Czechoslovakia still were independent states.

Developments have proved embarrassing to the building guards—the men who sit by the map and have to answer the questions of sightseers.

"Gosh," sighed the morning watch man, "you're about the 50th one today who's said something about the map. Heck, we can't do anything about it."

People spring all sorts of home-made wisecracks.

Remarks that make the guards flinch, however, are ones like:

"Everybody's admitted Germany's absorption of Austria except Postmaster-General Farley."

Officials have discussed the problem, but no solution is in sight. They are afraid to order alterations because another country might go before the cement is dry.

"I suppose," said one, "we'll have to let the people's feet wear out the boundary lines."

Jitter Hounds Swamp Music Quiz Contest

The stuff is here—and it's mellow . . .

Five easy little questions—duck soup for all you jittery swing hounds, and all you serious students of music. Five easy little questions, and the best answer in 20 words to a simple musical question. The reward: Ten new recordings, hot or sweet, suit yourself—any 10 from the Decca catalogue—and with the compliments of "Peps" Whiteman, Oom-pah Paul, due here Sunday night at Symphony hall.

The 20-word answer to a simple question is your own fault. We couldn't help doing it because the first answers, rolled in in such volumes, and were so universally correct, that there had to be an added starter. So now you not only mark the rights or the wrongs of the questions, but you also have a chance to express your own opinions.

Yes, sir, shoot the bazo to me, John, boy! . . .

The series started in The Sunday Advertiser—you know that, too, don't you?—and the answers to that first chirp from this department were so overwhelming that we can't possibly have the winner of the first set of ten records by today. That's what we said, and we're sorry—but anybody who hasn't answered that first batch can still do it because the winners won't be announced until a week from Saturday.

That's your fault, too—or, rather, ours, for we didn't think there'd be that many answers.

Write a letter, if you want to, and tell us what you think of the contest, because it's going on one more week now, anyway, with the same kind of prizes. Only the next time they're from Tommy Dorsey, old sweet Tommy, himself, and maybe—just maybe, m i n d—he might autograph a set as kind of an extra, special prize. More of that later.

Also, if you have any questions you think are good ones, send 'em along. There's no prize for the questions, just for the answers, but we'll give credit where credit is due. If you want to see your name in the paper, send in a set now. It wouldn't be fair to use more than one question from one person, though.

Come on you solid senders, swing on down until it breaks! . . .

1 Bite Dooms Beavers in N.H.

CONCORD, N. H., April 11 (AP)—It was bad enough when New Hampshire's beavers built dams which flooded highways, valuable farmland and woodlots—but when one went off the reservation to bite a policeman, it was the last straw.

After receiving reports the valuable fur-bearing animals were causing all kinds of damage and that one had bitten Patrolman Patrick Pinette while he was walking a night beat, the Legislature approved a bill to allow trapping of the "builders" during March and April, effective next spring.

'Record Exchange' in Sunday Magazine

By demand a "record exchange" column will be featured in next Sunday's Smart Set magazine of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

This department will appear on the same page with Jack Shaw's regular column "The Turntable." Phonograph record fans are today invited to address their "swap letters" to the Record Exchange, care of Jack Shaw, Boston Sunday Advertiser, Winthrop square. Your letters MUST NOT be longer than 150 words. The service is free.

U. S. Solon Gets Lindbergh Reply

WASHINGTON, April 11 (INS)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh will contact Acting Chairman Bloom of the House foreign affairs committee, regarding Bloom's invitation to testify before the committee as soon as he arrives in this country, he radioed the congressman today.

Lindbergh is now on the high seas en route from Europe. The radiogram to Bloom said tersely:

"Will communicate directly on arrival."

Meanwhile officials of the national advisory committee for aeronautics said they hope that Lindbergh's testimony on air might of the dictator nations will result in an expanded aviation research program in this country.

BRITISH TRAIN ON WAY HERE

Bostonians, beginning tomorrow, will have two days in which to view the Coronation Scot, famous British streamlined train now touring the United States preparatory to being placed on exhibition at the New York World's Fair.

The train, which is making a tour of 38 American cities and towns before going to the fair, will arrive at South Station at 3 p. m. tomorrow and will be on exhibition there until 6 p. m.

On Thursday, also on Track 8, it will be on exhibition from 8 a. m. until noon.

This famed train, claimed as a worthy successor to the Royal Scot which visited here and was shown at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago in 1933, is operated daily, except Sundays, between London and Glasgow, 401½ miles in each direction.

The train makes its run at an average speed of 61.7 miles an hour, including a two-minute stop at Carlisle, about 300 miles from London, to change engine crews. The engine itself makes the complete run.

In the first six months it was in service, the Coronation Scot carried more than 36,000 passengers on the longest runs ever made in Great Britain by any steam locomotive at so high an average speed.

The engineer is Fred C. Bishop, 57-year-old bachelor, who has been railroading 41 years, 24 of them at the throttle.

His fireman is J. Carswell, 34, with 18 years of service, 17 of them firing, but also holding an engineer's license.

Cambridge Girl Bride in Mail Romance

Old Mr. Whiskers had wings on his back and a Cupid's bow and arrow today, his United States mails having united a Cambridge girl secretary and a San Francisco oil company manager at Reno.

According to word received by her mother, Miss Evelyn A. Lawson, 26, of 28 Williams street, Cambridge, secretary in a Boston brokerage house, was married yesterday to John Wright McReynolds, 27, of San Francisco.

The marriage climaxed two and a half years of a romance conducted by mail, with even the proposal and the acceptance traveling in old Mr. Whiskers' care.

However, it was not a complete mail-order romance, because Evelyn and her bridegroom met three years ago this summer in California while she was visiting a married brother.

After Evelyn left California to return East the exchange of letters began and Uncle Sam's postal revenue increased considerably through this love.

Finally the date was set—April 10—and only a few hours after Evelyn had arrived in Reno, they were married.

Then they left for San Francisco.

Evelyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Russell of Williams street. In addition to her secretarial work now given up of course, she has been prominent as a director of amateur theatricals.

U. S. CELL STILL WAITS BERGDOLL

WASHINGTON, April 11 (INS)—The prison cell from which wealthy Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, notorious World War draft dodger, fled to exile in Germany 19 years ago still awaits the fugitive, officials declared today.

Orders were issued for government agents to arrest him instantly on his return to United States soil after his wife, docking in New York from Germany, said Bergdoll plans to sail from Germany next week.

War Department spokesman declared Bergdoll must serve the five-year term imposed on him by an army court martial board in 1920 if he returns to this country, being extended the fugitive by the War Department.

In addition to the five-year court martial conviction awaiting Bergdoll, the Justice Department has ready an indictment against him as a draft-dodger.

(First news of Grover Bergdoll's plans to return to the United States to serve out his sentence as a draft-dodger was given to the public by the Boston Evening American and International News Service on March 25.)

Italy Pours Troops Along Greek Border

developments of the situation with more easiness," it was said officially.

At Malta, gun-bristling island, only 85 miles from the southern shores of Italian Sicily, gas masks were distributed to civilians and Americans residing there were advised to leave. The families of many British navy and army officers left for England.

NEAR ALBANIA

Diplomatic circles believed a show of British naval power off Corfu would have the psychological effect of "warning off" Mussolini from any attempt on the island.

Corfu, 40 miles long and 20 miles wide at the broadest point, lies off the Albanian-Greek Adriatic border, two miles from the shores of Albania which Italy absorbed in her Good Friday invasion.

The presence of the fleet in the Eastern Mediterranean, British leaders hoped, also might offset pressure by Rome and Berlin to keep Balkan states out of the British-French "anti-aggression" front.

The British cabinet, by an urgent session on Easter Monday, had set for Thursday Chamberlain's delivery of a declaration reported to contain promises of aid to Greece and Turkey after the fashion of the British commitment to Poland.

To hear this pronouncement, parliament was called into the first extraordinary session since the September crisis over Czechoslovakia.

There also was a belief in some British quarters that Britain was waiting for a possible declaration from Premier Mussolini that Italy's Balkan ambitions were satisfied.

These sources declared if Italy guaranteed she would seek no further change in the Mediterranean area and would move to withdraw Italian troops from Spain, the tone of Chamberlain's declaration two days hence would be considerably softened.

Admiralty officials denied that any British ships were near Corfu, or in any other Greek waters. They said, however, the Mediterranean fleet was concentrating at Malta, closest naval base to Corfu.

SPAIN PERILS FRANCE

The battle cruiser Repulse, assigned to the special duty of taking King George and Queen Elizabeth to Canada next month, remained at Gibraltar, causing speculation that she was being held there to strengthen the Mediterranean fleet.

In informed circles some support was given to reports of unusual activity along the Polish-German frontier and of increased Italian troop concentrations along the Albanian-Greek border.

British officials did not conceal their anxiety over failure of Italy and Germany to remove their troops and technical experts from Spain. Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, French ambassador to Spain, arrived in Paris for a conference with the foreign office.

It was feared in London if war broke out France would have to defend her Pyrenees frontier as well as her eastern and Italian fronts.

Although there was no official confirmation, it was believed Britain, within the last two days, had asked Mussolinin to withdraw his troops from Spain.

Carol in Bucharest, Confers on Crisis

BUCHAREST, Rumania, April 11 (INS)—King Carol prepared to return here today after an Easter vacation on the Black sea. He will confer with his ministers and diplomats on the European crisis.

One of the first visitors received by Carol will be Foreign Minister Gafencu, who has returned from Ankara, Turkish capital, reportedly with an agreement to apply the Balkan entente part in the event of aggression against Rumania, Turkey or Greece.

Dutch Mobilize 'For Neutrality'

THE HAGUE, Holland, April 11 (INS—Amid spreading rumors that German troops are on the march near the Netherlands frontier, Premier Hendryk Colijn today proclaimed his nation's determination to remain neutral should Europe be engulfed in war.

In a nation-wide radio broadcast, Colijn declared that desire to remain neutral "in all circumstances" was the sole reason for the government's action in calling up frontier battalions during the night.

"There is no reason whatever for uneasiness," he declared.

Colijn advised the people to continue their daily occupations and await developments with complete calm.

During the night it was announced that frontier battalions were being called to the colors.

Tourists Here Bring European War Hints

Mussolini's seizure of little Albania was predicted more than a month ago by an obscure Egyptian correspondent who also wrote that Hitler was engineering the move.

Evidence of this was a Cairo newspaper clipping treasured as a souvenir by Mrs. Bon Gleasin of Washington, who debarked today from the Mediterranean cruise liner Exochorda at the Army Base.

"The story, written in English, was only a few paragraphs in length," said Mrs. Geaslin, "And it was buried deep in the paper where I imagined most everybody missed it.

"My fellow passengers jeered me when I showed it to them, but had it been a laughing matter I certainly would have had the last laugh. Several days ago we received the news of Albania's seizure on the ship's wireless."

GREETED BY HUNDREDS

Mrs. Geaslin, wife of Bon Gaeslin, general counsel of the U. S. maritime commission, was on a six weeks' vacation cruise with Mrs. Carl Moran, wife of another member of the commission. They were met by their husbands at the pier.

Bearing out the theories of the Egyptian writer were the views expressed by Walter P. Bullock of New York, retired British war correspondent, returning from a four months' vacation tour of Europe. Traveling with Bullock was his wife.

"Italy," stated Bullock, "hates and fears Hitler. And Hitler hasn't too much trust in Italy. There are Nazi officers with practically every Fascist military unit, proving this.

"The people of Italy don't want war, and many of my Italian friends have told me that if England takes a firm stand war will be averted. If, however, the axis powers continue to receive concessions, war will undoubtedly come."

MORGAN MAY CUT CRUISE

Possibility that J. P. Morgan, now cruising in Mediterranean waters on his famous yacht Corsair, would order the cruise cut short because of the war scare was expressed by Dr. Carl B. Hall, formerly connected with the Boston Lying In hospital.

Dr. Hall, who was the yacht's physician, said that he left the Corsair at Monte Carlo to return to his home in Chicago with Morgan's permission.

At Monte Carlo the Archbishop of Canterbury and other prominent Britishers went aboard the yacht, said Dr. Hall.

Passengers were given a grandstand seat in one of the last air fights of the Spanish war when off Gibraltar the saw an Insurgent plane shoot down a bomber attacking a Franco cruiser.

MAINE COUPLE LAND

Other passengers landing here included Mr. and Mrs. L. Irving Fletcher of Kennebunk, Me., returning from a four months' "camera shooting" expedition in the wild game country of Africa.

Also debarking was Miss Mary Wilder Richards of Washington, who completed a year's study of French at the University of Geneva.

Dennison Co. Calls Meeting May 23

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

Stockholders of the Dennison Manufacturing Co. have been called to a special meeting on May 23 to vote on a plan of re-capitalization . . . W[illegible] object is the elimination of accumulated dividends on the preferred stock . . . And includes eight minor objectives as well . . .

H. S. Dennison, president on the order of the board of directors, has prepared a complete outline of the proposed plan for stockholders . . . In which he [illegible] all classes of securities in the event it is adopted . . . Because the same [illegible] . . . This [illegible] the section of Framingham where the factory is located, much [illegible] has been created by proposed changes in its financial structure . . . Treasurer W. E. P. Howell has sent all stockholders the plan together with a proxy, consent and agreement to it . . .

SINCE 1878 . . . When it was incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts Dennison has been an important factor in the [illegible] industry . . . Its products have filled a unique place in the business needs of the country . . .

TO THE LADIES . . . Of the Boston agency of the Equitable Life Assurance Co., of the United States . . . a toast . . . For theirs is the first composed entirely of women . . . And this week marks its 40th anniversary . . . [illegible] founded the pioneer women's department in 1899 . . . And Eleanor J. Felton, one of her close friends and associates, has administered its affairs as a unit of the Fitzhugh Traylor Agency of the Equitable since 1935 . . .

RECOGNITION . . . For local and New England financial and brokerage interests is seen once again in the list of nominations for New York Stock Exchange posts . . . Malcolm W. Greenough, of Hutchins & Parkinson, is one of the nominees to the board of governors . . . For a three year term as a representative of members or allied members or non-members of the exchange residing outside the metropolitan area of New York City . . . Richard Pigeon of Estabrook & Co. is one of four nominated as a trustee of the Gratuity Fund . . . He is selected for the three year term . . .

EXECUTIVES ORGANIZE . . . In order to have a more commanding voice in national affairs . . . Which is at least a start toward answering oft heard complaints . . . That all business and industrial caucus do is sit back and criticize . . . Harry E. Sherwin, of Rindge, N. H., is accepted the position of N. E. regional director for the Executive League of America . . . He will make his headquarters at the Hotel Statler . . . And with a sound organization to start with the executive voice bids fair to obtain a better reception for its views on national affairs . . . .

SEATS POSTED . . . For transfer by the Boston Stock Exchange include that of William M. Worden . . . To M. Joseph Conroy . . . And that of Stephen Paine . . . To Frank H. Brown . . . Another item of interest connected with local dealings is the swift fall of Elevated . . . The threat of a return to private ownership appeared to sap the issue of all resistance to selling . . .

New Opportunities Found in West

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
International News Service Economic Commentator

IN THE WEST, April 11—Professional prophets of doom have temporary success during every depressed period, but in the United States subsequent expansion always opens new opportunities.

The pessimists now over-exploit the argument that our geographical frontiers have already been pushed to the Pacific, and that unemployed men in the east no longer have the alternative of moving to free land in the west.

This viewpoint has been overdone—especially in the significance attached to it. As a matter of fact, there is a new frontier in the growing effort to industrialize the eleven western states. Besides, in all parts of the country the creative mind, functioning in the realm of science and invention, are finding new and better ways to make desirable goods, and are thus opening up new frontiers of opportunity.

Chatting about this subject with Win Cline, adman at Boise, Ida., I got this interesting Western slant:

"To me, Idaho offers great opportunity to young men. While the population of the state was practically dormant from 1910 to 1930, the states has drawn a great many agriculturists from the drought areas of the Middle West during the last few years, and there has been a revived interest in mining and lumbering.

"Idaho may well be classed with Arizona, New Mexico and Wyoming as frontier states, but Idaho is probably more blessed than any of those other states with a diversity of opportunities. The expansion of irrigation is the greatest single contributing factor to present growth and future growth. As the need for reclamation advances, Idaho is one state with vast undeveloped water resources which should add tremendously to our population in years to come.

"Of course, you are familiar with the fame of Idaho potatoes. It is generally said that people who know nothing about the state of Idaho do know Idaho potatoes and Senator Borah."

As a result of migration from other states, the average age of residents of Idaho has been reduced in recent years, whereas the average age nationally has been increasing.

Stocks Meet Support After Sharp Slump

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP)—Leading stocks were pounded down 1 to more than 5 points in today's market after early efforts to extend Monday's rally met with a chilly reception.

Dealings were orderly until the approach of noon, when heavy selling, concentrated on motor, steels, aircrafts and specialties in the ticker tape behind the pace then slowed and some support appeared. A few leaders rallied 1 to 3 points from the lows.

WAGNER BATTLES CHANGES IN NLRA

WASHINGTON, April 11 (INS)—Defending the National Labor Relations Act as a bulwark of democracy and justice, Senator Robert F. Wagner (D.) of New York, its author, vigorously opposed a score of proposed changes as the Senate labor committee opened hearings today on pending amendments.

Wagner indorsed one amendment to permit employers as well as employees to petition the labor board for an election for collective bargaining representation. He held as worthy of study amendments which would prohibit the board from invalidating existing bona fide union contracts and compel the board to respect craft union contracts in determining collective bargaining representatives.

OPPOSES WALSH PLAN

With these exceptions, Wagner condemned the amendments of Senator Walsh (D.) of Massachusetts and Burke (D.) of Nebraska as "impairments" to the act, and advised the committee to study all factors involved before making any changes at all.

He was the first witness to appear at the hearings on proposals for changes, given only the slimmest chance for adoption at this session of Congress.

Accusing "selfish interests," which he said, sought to break down the law, Wagner said the hearings should be revealing, and that he stood ready to appraise "new changes" when the need for such changes was shown.

HINTS AT CALAMITY

"The proof is overwhelming that the labor act, in its broad outlines, has proved an effective instrument for economic peace and economic justice," Wagner declared. "It has vastly benefited workers, employers and the public at large.

"No one challenges its objectives; no responsible party openly advocates its repeal. Any diminution of its effectiveness would be a national evil; its mutilation would be a national calamity."

EARNINGS

NEW YORK, April 11 (AP)—Coca-Cola Company reported today net income for 1938 of $25,570,857, or $5.95 a common share, the highest in the soft-drink company's history and compared with $24,681,616, or $5.73 a share, in 1937.

Richfield Oil Corporation reported consolidated net profit of $2,042,955 in 1938, the first full year of operation since reorganization. The company has exclusive West coast holdings.

Baking Thrills for Children

By MARTHA LEE

When we were little shavers, pie baking was a thrill. Spicy odors and the warm fragrance of the kitchen [illegible] us to the center of preparation as irresistibly as a display of toy airplanes lures aside little boys on their way to the store for bread.

Although Dad and the big boys considered the pie itself the important result of Mother's labors, we younger fry regarded the fate of the scraps of pastry as much more enticing. Always this realm was [illegible] the scraps—sprinkled with [illegible] and spices and [illegible] were our reward for [illegible] the young [illegible]

Modern children [illegible] sophisticated [illegible] pastries but well respond to the enticements of crunchy pastry scraps. Tiny morsels that crunch between your teeth and then melt away to nothingness, may be made from trimmings of pastry. You can make sweet tidbits savory snacks small turnovers, cheese sticks and small rounds for meat pies all from the odd pieces of pastry trimmed off the edges of a pie.

SWEET TIDBITS

Roll pastry scraps to ⅛-inch thickness cut into small shapes. Put together with a bit of mincemeat thick stewed fruit, marmalade etc. Seal edges and crimp with a fork.

Top small round with rings of pastry made by cutting out centers with a thimble. Bake fill with a bit of preserves or marmalade before serving.

Small pieces may be sprinkled generously with sugar and cinnamon.

Bake tidbits in a very hot oven (400 deg. F.) 10 to 12 minutes.

SAVORY SNACKS

Roll pastry scraps to ⅛ inch thickness, cut into small shapes using pastry wheel or small sandwich or cookie cutters. Sprinkle some of the pastries with caraway celery or poppy seeds, or curry powder, or cayenne. Bake in a very hot oven (400 deg. F.) for 10 minutes.

Garnish the pastries just before serving with anchovies olives sandwich spread, deviled ham cheese, etc. Best fresh from the oven.

CHEESE PINWHEELS

Roll pastry scraps to [illegible] thickness [illegible] [illegible] squares. Top with [illegible] and dot [illegible] Roll [illegible] and [illegible] for 10 minutes. Serve hot.

TARTLETTE APPETIZERS

Another neat trick is to make tiny tartlettes from pastry trimmings and then fill them with assorted canape mixtures. A delicious morsel is a tiny, fragile tart filled with a savory, hot chicken mixture.

Cheese spreads, hot ham mixture meat and mushroom mix, sardine paste, curry mixtures—all may be used in the tartlettes.

SMALL TURNOVERS

Roll out pastry scraps to ⅛ inch thickness cut into triangles. Spread one triangle with mincemeat chopped apple seasoned with cinnamon and sugar jam or jelly. Top with another pastry triangle and crimp edges with tines of a fork. Bake in a very hot oven (400 deg. F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

DECORATIVE PIE GARNISHES

Roll pastry scraps thin cut into fancy shapes—stars, crescents etc. and use as garnishes on pie. Place the tiny shapes on top of the pie crust and bake as usual.

For unbaked tart shells: Line inside of patty pans with pastry. Pour cooled filling into shells and bake in a very hot oven (450 deg. F.) for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to moderate (350 deg. F.) to finish baking. Muffin pans may be used instead of fluted baking pans.

THE BOSTON FINANCE COMMISSION is a critical body, particularly when its eyes rest on the City Hospital.

Miss [illegible] Logan, superintendent of nurses, is too zealous. The young women she trains to care for the sick and dying receive [illegible] instruction. Standards exceed the minimum statutory requirements.

The Commission, flaunting the banner of economy, deplores this and, apparently, expects you to join the everything's wrong chorus.

WILL YOU? You probably won't if you remember the hospital's achievements—not a fatal diphtheria case in 22 months, hundreds of mothers brought safely through the dangers of maternity, thousands of men, women and children given new life and hope by up-to-date surgery.

Of course Boston might save money if diplomas were awarded nurses after two weeks' instruction.

BUT WOULD ANY MEMBER OF THE FINANCE COMMISSION WANT SUCH A NURSE?

CAN YOU TELL when you're going to die? Apparently the feat is possible, for here is the letter Frederic Tudor of Sandwich got in answer to his letter of automobile registration "Mass. 1," wrote ten days ago to Registrar Frank A. Goodwin.

"I anticipate dying soon, and I request that 'Mass. 1' at my death be turned over to my wife or to my adopted son."

The prophecy was fulfilled. Today at his Cape Cod home, just across the canal, Frederic Tudor is dead.

If you are interested in the psychic powers of the mind or a belief in reincarnation you'll want to learn more about this remarkable case. HOW WAS HE ABLE TO ANTICIPATE HIS DEATH?

Another question you also ask is more easily answered. Mr. Tudor's request will be granted. Despite the avalanche of applications [illegible] Mass. 1 [illegible] the road.

"Least I can do to honor the memory of a man who operated an automobile 57 years without a serious accident," says Registrar Goodwin.

CARL WOEKEL, Representative from Methuen, believes the general public lacks the protection which lobbyists obtain for insurance companies.

"What about the collapse of the Broad Street Mutual Casualty Company? What about the Canton Mutual Liability firm?" he inquires.

Thousands of other citizens are asking the same questions.

Massachusetts's banking, insurance, thanks to Justice Brandeis, is among the nation's best. Massachusetts automobile insurance, thanks to politics, is the nation's worst.

Let the Legislature, wasting its time on less important matters, wake up and do something about it.

THE NATION MOURNS for Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, soldier, statesman and gentleman of the old school. His death is a great loss to the country, to good citizenship and to the Democratic Party.

Senator Lewis, Chesterfieldian manners, [illegible] white whiskers will long be remembered. Without them, the Senate will hardly seem the same.

He broke a party before partisanship and the rights of American citizens. He had courage unlimited and would have been an important figure in the approaching campaign.

NEW ENGLAND WAGES exceed those paid in the rest of the nation, says the Social Security Board. Connecticut leads with an annual average of $966. Massachusetts follows with $944; Vermont trails with $735.

Only persons subject to Old Age Insurance Law provisions are considered. Thousands, including the army and those who work on farms and at domestic tasks, are not counted.

The [illegible] unfortunate. Partly [illegible] the wage level ALL INDUSTRIES [illegible] partly employed should be listed. Otherwise, the statistics show a PART of the picture, not the WHOLE of it.

[illegible] would be wiser if he removed [illegible] ruinous tariff policies [illegible] used New England mills, then counted workers' pay.

CHRISTIAN FAITH said Christina Georgina Rossetti is "like a lily lifted high and white." Red Moscow provides illustrative proof.

Associated Press dispatches say Easter, season of the lily, found the anti-Communist center's few remaining churches crowded and surrounded by great numbers of worshipers. Twelve hundred crammed one shrine built to accommodate four hundred.

Nineteen centuries ago Roman emperors set out to crush Christianity and succeeded only in crushing themselves.

Lenin and his atheistic followers could learn much from the past and present.

"Newspaper Souse Has Gone"

I [illegible] CAN'T [illegible] Then I [illegible] a [illegible] playwright, [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] reporter, [illegible] short story writer and author of innumerable magazine articles on current crimes. But they served time together on a [illegible] morning newspaper.

One evening the city editor handing out the last of his batch of assignments before taking the 5:15 to Montclair called one of the pair to his desk and handed him an assignment to "cover" a sketch by Upton Sinclair, a condensed version of "The Jungle," as I recall.

The other young gentleman was taking that evening off, and was at a loss as to how to put in his leisure hours. So, being good pals, they covered the assignment together—one in formal evening dress, top-hat, tails, white tie and all the rest; the other in workaday garments.

I RECALL very vividly their return to the newspaper office, each very gay and in a pleasurable glow, and how the young gentleman in the top hat sat down at his typewriter and commenced a play review which was remembered along Park Row for many a day and always to shouts of laughter.

For Top Hat wrote the first paragraph, then paused for an inspiration. Whereupon his partner calmly took over the silk hat and wrote Paragraph 2. And so it went, each in turn, paragraphs by paragraph, as the silk hat passed from flushed brow to flushed brow for two thirds of a column [illegible]

[illegible] place went along. [illegible] and [illegible] a pesky [illegible] [illegible] to the desk of a [illegible] editor who was the [illegible] reader and heading [illegible] and [illegible]

THIS INCIDENT of [illegible] was in the days when [illegible] occasionally give a [illegible] their ideas by a few [illegible] comes back to me as I read Stanley Walker's "Decline of the Newspaper Souse" in the current issue of The American Mercury.

As a city editor and [illegible] editor with few peers, Stanley knows whereof he writes. The newspaper souse has gone [illegible].

It is Stanley Walker's opinion that "liquor is bad, killing potential genius and wasting time and making unreliable bores out of otherwise valuable fellows and that, so far as that is true, the general decline of the souse newspapermen has been a good thing. But, to balance that gain, there has been a loss of camaraderie, of imagination, of the comic spirit, and of the sense that in a myriad intangible ways the newspaper profession is a good profession for a man who is alive.

RIDE THE RAILS and you'll write that best seller through [illegible] declares Cornelia Otis Skinner, star of "Candida" who [illegible] the spring nonsense of Excuse It Please and "Tuthers and Utters" to the obbligato of clackety rails.

THE PRIVATE DRAWING-ROOM and her refusal to make speeches are the only assertion of any temperament according to her staff, several of whom have been with her for fifteen years. She broke the speech-making tradition last week in Pittsburgh when for the first time in her career she addressed the Harvard, Yale and Princeton Clubs.

Her aversion to speech-making is [illegible] explainable. But it [illegible] her of undergraduate days at Bryn Mawr when she detested [illegible] and drew a pleasant flunk in the course. Yet she has scored outstanding successes in writing, interpreting and recreating such women in history as "Wives of Henry VIII" and "Empress Eugenie."

AN INTERESTING WORK goes on at Weston College where a [illegible] of scholastics gather weekly to master sign language for the religious instruction of the deaf. Twenty-five students are listed in the class, called the [illegible] Academy.

The idea was started at the behest of James Donohue of Dorchester and has progressed so rapidly that centers are now established in Roxbury, Lynn and Neponset.

It seems particularly fitting that the clergy should carry on the work of a zealous French priest. Abbe Charles de l'Epee, who systematized the language of the deaf and in 1765 invented the sign language, universally used today.

HERBERT HOOVER
Voices Sound Tradition

WASHINGTON, April 11—It is [illegible] that Herbert Hoover's rejection of [illegible] invitation to address a dinner meeting advanced by the [illegible] Secretary of State should have been published [illegible] with that engagement, although obviously penned [illegible] in advance of Mr. Henry L. Stimson's appearance before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

[illegible] Republicans were pretty well burned up by the Democratic strategy, which led to the calling of a former Republican Secretary of State, as the initial witness, to support the provocative policies of President Roosevelt and Under Secretary Sumner Welles, against the so-called dictatorships.

WHEN SENATORS had read Mr. Hoover's forthright criticism of the Roosevelt foreign policies—although that criticism was handled with tact and discretion, as befitting a former occupant of the President's chair—the conclusion seemed inescapable to some that Mr. Hoover himself ought to be called before the committee.

This perhaps may be done. If not, some other means will be found to make it entirely plain to the American people that in advocating provocative measures against the totalitarian states, Henry L. Stimson was speaking for but very few Republicans, and by no means correctly stated the attitude of the Republican Party.

Mr. Hoover, on the very day Mr. Stimson appeared before the Pittman committee, made it very clear that the man who had been his secretary of state did not correctly express his views.

Mr. Hoover certainly reflects world sentiment at the moment the war-torn continents, but unorganized, speak in Congress.

Said Mr. Stimson in his committee testimony:

"For myself I agree with the President that there are methods which are 'short of war but stronger and more effective than mere words.'"

Says Mr. Hoover, with clear and realistic vision, in his article on liberty:

"And we are told that we can stop them (the 'aggressors') with more-than-words and less-than-war. There is no other nation in the world who would believe that this can be done and keep from provoking war for long. It is certain that the highly realistic democracies in Europe will make no such declarations of national policy."

THAT JOINS the issue, and leaves former President Hoover on the side of sound American tradition, and Mr. Stimson alone—or nearly so among Republicans with the exception perhaps of a few international bankers—on the side of the new Roosevelt-Welles policy of provocative meddling in the ages-old quarrels of Europe.

GARNER REWARDS PATRIOTISM

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK April 11 . . . Robert Montgomery met Vice-President Garner in Washington a few days ago, the screen star became overwhelmed with patriotic fervor.

He looked up at the Great Dome of the United States above him and then turned through the window through which he could see the flag flying over the Capitol.

"What are you thinking about?" asked Garner . . . "I'm thinking," Montgomery confessed, "that some day I'll be able to tell my son that I stood under the Great Seal and at the same moment I could see the American flag flying over the Capitol of this country. It's thrilling."

Later, when Montgomery left, he wrote a penciled note to him, "with the compliments of the Vice-President."

"What's in it," he asked.

"It's something that will thrill your son when you tell him that story," Garner replied. "I . . . that flag you just saw."

"And Mr. Woollcott will come down here and play for a week." Dorothy declared . . . "Yes," said Dorothy, sarcastically, "and I'll play Hedda Gabler" . . . and so the next day a report was circulated . . . Dorothy Parker would play Hedda Gabler.

THE OTHER NIGHT one of the local cafes had only two customers. "Too bad," one of the duo consoled the proprietor—who answered: "If you think this is bad, you should've been here yesterday. Nobody came" . . . Gregory LaCava saw the movie, "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle," and criticized: "It's a very good picture—but Vernon Castle's life wasn't properly constructed."

ELIOTT ROOSEVELT went to the Kit Kat Klub last night and there was introduced to Evalyn Walsh McLean, who was wearing her Hope Diamond . . . "Yes, this is the Hope diamond," said Mrs. McLean, removing the gem. "Here, touch it" . . . "Oh, no," Roosevelt declined. "Then would you like to buy it?" Mrs. McLean suggested . . . Roosevelt removed a one-dollar bill from his pocket . . . "You mean," asked Mrs. McLean, "you're offering $1 for it?" . . . "No," Roosevelt assured, pocketing the dollar bill, "I mean I'd rather have a $1 bill than the Hope diamond."

MAURICE EVANS' PORTRAYAL MOST HUMAN OF 'HAMLETS'

Shubert's Shakespearean Gem Brilliantly Staged

By PEGGY DOYLE

For 147 years [illegible] seeing "Hamlet," but it didn't really "set" "Hamlet" [illegible] night at the Shubert when Maurice Evans appeared [illegible] role of his whole, uncut production.

And from me to you here is no [illegible] cheer. The [illegible] is a honey, a [illegible] more classical [illegible] simple phrase [illegible] I've ever written.

Evans, the young [illegible] who in two years [illegible] Broadway's colossal [illegible] ably makes a [illegible] the melancholy Dane [illegible] frank, credible Hamlet [illegible] not mouth high [illegible] but who says what he [illegible] the side of authority.

His "Hamlet" is [illegible] exceedingly presented [illegible] lobby soliloquy, [illegible] leading man death [illegible] bravedigger [illegible] impersonation [illegible] best and there [illegible] that keeps you [illegible] the edge of [illegible].

From the [illegible] to the [illegible] modern cloth. The [illegible] to the Castle of [illegible] startle make [illegible] to happen. It's [illegible] staging by Margaret [illegible] added laughter [illegible] mother Jane Wyatt [illegible] introduction [illegible] her [illegible] contributions to the production.

There is a modern [illegible] stage furnishings and [illegible] delightful surprise [illegible] postman actor [illegible] the stage with [illegible] swords in the props in N[illegible].

If this is what detained the Elizabethans late at night at the theater, they deserve no medals for it. Broadway has been taking this for months and loving it, and if Boston doesn't we're going to be pretty ashamed of it.

As we have said before and [illegible] to stop saying, Evans' Hamlet is the most human of Hamlets, a great lover, a staunch friend, a devoted son an avenging [illegible]. It may not be in the tradition but we liked it thoroughly.

Henry Edwards' King of Denmark [illegible] villainous, miserable, unhappy, was excellently [illegible]. As his wife, the queen, Mady Christians, Vienna-born [illegible] gave a sensitive, beautifully sustained performance.

There was grand comedy in Whitford Kane's gravedigger and infinite appeal in Katherine Locke's Ophelia, a character which is a long way from her Having a Wonderful Time' role but which she took in stride and easily.

Other fine performances were turned in by George Graham, as [illegible]s, Ludlow Randolph, as Horatio, and Wesley Addy as Laertes. [illegible]son [illegible] it is Evans' magnificent [illegible] Hamlet and Miss Webster's [illegible] big, exciting production [illegible] take top honors in the Shubert Theatre's current attraction.

Austen Lake:

Ode to Optimism; Sox Pennant Dream

FRIENDS, WHY FEEL LIVERISH? Things are taking on a vernal freshness. Nature is stirring on New England's pillow. Soon the robins will be nesting and already an advertising crew is freshening the whiskey signs on Fenway's fences. It's the time for April optimism and our hometown journalists are claiming a pennant on paper for the Red Sox. It's the season of Hope, my hardy perennials, so why not dream?

AUSTEN LAKE

Here come the Sox with an infusion of young, boiling and ambitious blood to mix with the sluggish corpuscles of their older codgers. Here stand a couple of million baseball customers fingering their money and ready to yell their larynxes loose. Let's put away winter's aspirin.

I have this hunch—that the N. Y. Yankees of 1938 will suffer the same slump and general inertia which has followed all great ball clubs after their third successive pennant. It's been baseball's law of disintegration. For, since General Abner Doubleday first paced off his diamond in a Cooperstown cow pasture, ever since the Knickerbockers of New York formed the first baseball fraternity, only one manager ever contrived to win more than three successive pennants—John McGraw. In 100 years all other pennant sequences have been limited to three.

So, the life of any super ball club may be placed at three years. Miller Huggins said that after his first triple championship in 1927. Connie Mack repeated it when his three-time pennant winner collapsed in 1932. And the gist of both opinions was that the effectiveness of any ball club stops when the pennant hunt loses its zest to the athletes; that no man is more competent than his interest in his work and that spiritual droop will blight the most perfect outfit faster than physical decay.

Connie Sold Tom a Flop

Bring 'Em Back Alive, Joe

YET ONE WORD TO THE RED SOX. For years the boys just wouldn't get heated over their games in the Southern hominy belt and took them as trivialities which got them no boosts in pay and no records in the league ledgers. They were inclined to say, "O, Pooh! where is the brains in puffing lava and ash just to please some Tin Can tourists when we can save it for Fenway's homefolks and get serious all at once."

So, I would suggest that they start practicing seriousness right now by gradual stages, so that by mid-April they can develop the requisite spiritual toughness. We don't want any more cosmic charley-horses. I wasn't South this Spring and am unable to say whether the boys wandered around Sarasota like a flock of pet geese or whether Joe Cronin still wore fog in his eye like he was carrying the crown jewels around in his pants pockets with his keys and hard money, and was apprehensive of getting knocked on the noggin. For, indeed, the first fibrous roots of Red Sox failure have always sprouted in the South

Last year, in Sarasota, Cronin shed some of his Kiwanis character of cheer and fellowship and practiced getting tough. I am told that he rehearsed some sassy speeches and studied how to get red in the face before his mirror, so that when his Springtime optimists went to standup dozing, he could summon a rosy flush and a torrent of curses. Joe worried a little less and made his employe worry a little more. It did some good. Because the Red Sox finished second and Joe was voted the most valuable shortstop in his league.

So this is a new spring. There is an emerald touch to the Boston grass when seen sidewise. The crocs are blossoming on the Common The sun's big egg-yolk is shedding honey-colored light that grows daily more golden. So now is the time for Cronin to start his lads fretting about their future. Now is the time to cure them of their bohums if they have any bo-hums, and bring 'em back ALIVE.

It's half-past pennant time in Boston

FANS STAY NEUTRAL ON BEES, SOX SQUADS

Letters continue to pour into the office as fans verbally battle back and forth comparing the strength of the two Boston big league entries, Bees and Red Sox.

[illegible]

Dear Mr. Conway.

I read your paper every day and I am ready to give my opinion of the major league teams of Boston.

Mr. Clancy was right when he said the Red Sox got all the credit and the Bees don't get any. The Bees, we all know, have not the power the Red Sox have, but they always give you a ball game.

If the Red Sox were over in Bees' field, Foxx would not hit 50 home runs, and the rest of the team would not have the hitting power they got now. The Red Sox is a team made up of stars from the other American League teams. Foxx, Cronin, Vosmik, Grove, Cramer were stars before they came to the Red Sox. Look at the Bees, there is not a star on the team, but still they play heads up baseball.

So give the Bees the same cheer as the Red Sox. Let us root for both teams and not be one way. I am for the Red Sox to win as I am for the Bees. So let's all stick together for both. I remain yours truly.

GEORGE GLENE,
1144 Commonwealth ave., Allston.

12 Skehan St.,
Somerville.
March 19

Dear Mr. Conway,
Boston American,
Boston, Mass.

Resolved: That the Boston Red Sox are a better club than the Boston Bees. Yes, sir, this is certainly a wonderful topic for a debate. The "cons" on one side would give forth testimony and information that would prove that the Sox are far superior to the Bees, and on the "pro" side would appear just far opposite.

What side am I taking? Well, I am staying neutral. In my opinion, as long as the Hub city is represented by two teams, there will always be Sox followers and always Bee fans. I can't see how a real answer can be ascertained when both clubs have nothing in common, far from it. One has a huge field, one small (left field), one a hitting outfit, one a team composed of wonderful pitchers and weak batters. And one is also supposed to have more than the other, and I think you know which. In my opinion, it is all according to like. Fans like to witness slugfests (Fenway Park), while still others like to visit the Bee Hive and see a 1—0, 13-inning game.

To keep the spirits of both Boston clubs high, a real verdict should never be handed down as to which is the better team. Once one team knows that the public is more behind the other, their playing will bog down to almost nothing. So as to keep both teams in good standing, let us not select or try to select the better team. Let each fan pursue his favorite, always.

Thanks

L. TODI

BILL'S SPORT-O-GRIMES

TORONTO, April 11 — This is a community that stands steadfastly behind its hockey club, win, lose or draw . . . Providing, of course, the team doesn't lose too many . . . With the Stanley Cup series a one all stand-off, the city is hockey mad . . . Hundreds of out of town and even out of the province fans are scurrying around bidding for pasteboards for the third Bruins-Maple Leaf conflict.

Judging from the attitude of the hockey enthusiasts, the local papers must have commented very favorably on the sportsmanlike conduct of the Boston fans . . . They've been most cordial, which is a complete about face from my experience here three years ago . . . I haven't heard a single mention of "Boston Beans" . . . During the second game of the Stanley Cup finals, "Turk" Broda protected the Polish corridor and Murph "Neville" Chamberlain worked with telling effect on our three Germans, Dumart, Bauer and Schmidt . . . So as far as the Maple Leafs are concerned, the British-Polish pact is functioning . . .

Woody Dumart

However, before England and Poland combined, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart won the opening game . . . "Smiling" Jack Adams, manager of the Red Wings, hopped over from Detroit for the series . . . He still favors the Bruins . . . And, as yet, he's not convinced that the Leafs are a better club than his Wings . . . Among the visitors who dropped into the Royal York Hotel today were Lionel and Charlie Conacher, brothers of the Bruins rookie left winger, and Roy's twin, Bert, Harley Frost, who played for the Boston Tigers under Eddie Powers, "Whitey" Fields, another old Hub favorite, Al Murray, "the Americans' defenseman and Davie Kerr, the Ranger goalie.

Most of the Bruins took a busman's holiday last night by attending the Memorial Cup finals at the Gardens . . . Lester Patrick has some very promising youngsters on the Rosmers, particularly Bob Carse, brother of Bill, who was brought up from the Ramblers by Rangers for the Bruin series . . . Walter A. Brown, general manager of the Boston Garden and the Arena, is due here before game time . . . He's coming in from Winnipeg . . . Incidentally, the Springfield Arena will be under Walter Brown's management next season . . . It's a very complicated tie-up . . . But, will work out to the advantage of hockey in the City of Homes.

"King" Clancy, "Ace" Bailey, Hal Ballard, Stafford Smythe and Glen Hewitson made a record breaking motor trip back from Boston . . . They arrived home before the Bruins and Maple Leafs hit town . . . Ballard did the driving . . . Clancy furnished the conversation . . . The two kids slept most of the way, for on Sunday they'd left New York at 9 a. m. and didn't arrive in Boston until almost 6 o'clock . . . Less than 6 1/2 hours later, they were on their way home . . . The homing pigeons that Coach Dick Irvin received before the second game in Boston were only decoys, as far as having anything bearing on the Maple Leaf victory.

Ace Bailey

* * *

Connie Smythe's fight talk was responsible for that win . . . Although his shoulder is stiff and sore, Herbie Schmidt will be at his post when the Kitchener line goes into action tonight . . . Pete Langelle, the rookie that the Leafs brought up from Syracuse just before the close of the regular season, is wearing a beautifully decorated eye . . . A year ago, when he was beating the Maple Leafs with the Chicago Black Hawks, "Doc" Romnes was not very popular in this hamlet . . . But, he's the fair-haired boy today . . . And, Harvey "Busher" Jackson is coming in for his share of the glory for seting up the winning goal . . . Frank Jones, who is pinch hitting as trainer for Win Green, received a leave of absence from Boston College to make the trip . . . Hamie Moore and Walter Randell are also here . . . Art Ross thought he was back in Boston . . .

Art Ross

Just as soon as he checked in at the hotel last night his telephone started to ring and continued until he put in a "Don't Disturb" order. . . . The calls were for . . . That's right . . . Tickets . . . Art is holding to his original statement . . . "This is the best club I've seen in 37 years" . . . If they break even here, the Bruins should take the series . . . By the way, the Torontonians, who were in Boston and wagered on the second game, are still laughing over those 4 to 1 odds offered by our "boys."

The Sign Of Quality

Dawson's ALE AND BEER "Naturally Better"

Facts about the Largest sign in New England

To Boston's skyline has been added this week, what is believed to be the largest and most spectacular electric sign in New England. Advertising "Dawson's Ale and Beer" it flashes its message from Kenmore Square across the Charles River to Cambridge and to all incoming traffic on Commonwealth Avenue and Beacon Street.

This brilliant display extends more than 150 feet into the skyline, showing to Commonwealth Avenue a huge electric clock 28 feet in diameter, all outlined in neon tubes, giving accurate time legible for half a mile. This is the largest clock in New England.

In the construction of this display which was designed and erected by Donnelly Electric & Neon Co., more than three carloads of structural steel were used in the framework alone. A carload of sheet metal was used for the background and 200 gallons of paint was used. More than 3800 feet of neon tubing was used, requiring 146 transformers for the operation. In addition, 1000 incandescent lamps are used to produce the effect of writing on the night sky the message "Naturally Better." The display measures a total of 80 feet high above the roof and is approximately 80 feet long.

To gain some idea of the immensity of the display, consider that the letters in the word "Dawson's" are 21 feet high—almost four times as high as a medium sized man.

The neon tubing in this display would make a continuous line of light extending from Kenmore Square to downtown Boston. The electricity required to light these tubes and bulbs would provide illumination for 150 houses.

The construction of this advertising display has given direct employment to approximately 30 union men for a period of two months. All are skilled workers; artists, engineers, structural steel workers, sheetmetal workers, painters, riggers, electricians, and carpenters.

According to figures certified by Traffic Audit Bureau, this display will show to approximately 194,400 persons daily. These figures are arrived at by actual traffic counts taken at various intervals and comprise automobiles, street cars, buses and pedestrians.

5 Star Players Question Mark ⁞ Lou, Grove, Diz, Bartell, Hubbell

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 11—Baseball has five big question marks as the major league club prepare for their league openings next week. They are Lou Gehrig, Dick Bartell, Carl Hubbell, "Lefty" Grove and Dizzy Dean.

Gehrig started in go back last year, while this spring he has shown very poor form. The Iron Man of baseball has looked bad on hard hit ground balls that required him to go down suddenly, while his hitting has been off.

Gehrig's years without missing a ball game appear to be catching up with him. The strain of running up his remarkable record has been a physical as well as a mental strain on Lou.

I have often felt that Gehrig would have added years to his baseball life if he had forgotten about setting a new marathon record for continuous play and taken an occasional day off.

There must have been numerous occasions when Gehrig took his regular place in the lineup and went nine innings when he was suffering from some physical injury.

Gehrig probably will go on playing first base for the Yankees for several more years, but he has passed the peak of his amazing career.

It was not until after Babe Ruth ended his career with the Yankees that Gehrig received the attention to which his great playing entitled him." As a member of the same team with Ruth, Gehrig was overshadowed by the Babe's color and spectacular home run hitting.

Gehrig lit his share of home runs, but Ruth always the happy faculty of getting his big punch hits at the opportune moment in games or in driving the ball so far that he left the crowd gasping.

Ruth had color in everything he did on and off the ball field, while Gehrig is the sure, almost methodical type of athlete. Gehrig never broke any of the rules of training, while Ruth, the golden-hearted bad boy of baseball, always felt that baseball rules were made merely to be shattered to tiny bits.

Gehrig would have gained much more glory for himself if he had been with some other club than the Yankees. Nobody could compete with Ruth when they were sharing the same clubhouse with him, and eating in the same dining room. Ruth even had color when he ate, especially if he decided that the thing to do was to consume two or three steaks.

Cubs Have Their Problem Players

THE CUBS HAVE their share of problem players. Dick Bartell is their No. 1 headache this year in view of the fact Dizzy Dean's aching arm is now old stuff. Bartell has developed trouble with his ankles that has the doctors puzzled. Dick is getting $24,000 a year in salary, and it is not yet certain that he will be of any use to the Cubs in the early days of the pennant race.

Dizzy Dean is still causing Gabby Hartnett concern. The Cubs paid $185,000 for Dean and have got very little back on their investment.

Temperamental players like Dean do not help themselves when they meet with what should be only a temporary mishap. They magnify the importance of their injury, and think their condition is much worse than it really is.

Carl Hubbell of the Giants, one of the greatest left handers in the history of baseball, underwent an operation in an effort to recover the full use of his left arm.

If Hubbell stages a complete recovery, things will be that much brighter for the Giants. Otherwise Terry will get along with Harry Gumbert, Cliff Melton, Hal Schumacher and the rookie, Manuel Salvo, as his regular flingers.

"Lefty" Grove and the Red Sox

THE RED SOX are not relying too much on "Lefty" Grove. It is felt that Father Time has caught up with the famous left hander, and that he cannot be expected to keep winning ball games indefinitely.

Grove is anxious to pitch as much as possible this year. If his arm rounds into condition, Grove can be spotted into many games that he will have a better than an even chance of winning.

Grove could be of tremendous value to the Sox stepping into games in the later innings, and turning back rallies. Old Mose however, hasn't got any liking for relief work as a regular chore. He wants to be back in there taking his regular turn in the box.

It isn't believed that Grove would look with favor at being sent against only the weak clubs. He is like an old fire horse which has the smoke of battle in his nostrils. Grove still gets his greatest thrill out of thinking about throwing his fast ball past the Yankee sluggers.

One has to admire Grove's pride. It was this same pride that helped Grove to become one of the greatest pitchers in baseball.

Backstops Sox, Reds Problem

By JOE CASHMAN

PETERSBURG, Va., April 11—Managers Joe Cronin and Bill McKechnie can well appreciate the scarcity of good catchers.

The backstop department is the weakest in the Red Sox and Reds lineups.

Gene Desautels, the Fenway flock's first-string catcher, is a good receiver but he falls somewhat short of being a .300 hitter and is just average as a thrower and runner.

Johnny Peacock, second stringer, is faster and a better hitter, but at his best he's but a mediocre catcher.

The Sox scout army, under orders to concentrate on searching for catchers, can't find a youth capable of replacing a 36-year-old third-stringer.

In fact, as a receiver, handler of pitchers and strategist, Berg is the Sox' best backstop bet. At his age, however, he can't stand the strain of steady work.

LOMBARDI CLASS

The Reds have the National League's champion batsman as their regular catcher in the person of Ernie Lombardi.

The bat the giant Italian swings demands that he be kept on the job. If he were but a fair hitter, he wouldn't last a week in the majors, he's that weak and slow as a catcher.

Willard Hershberger, second-stringer, is just a run of the mill performer back of the bat.

As the case with the Sox, the Reds' third catcher is an old man who can give younger rivals lessons in how to catch.

The 40-year-old Jimmy Wilson is down on the roster as a coach but he's going to be placed on the active list.

He's provided the only real big league catching the Ohioians have received this Spring and they're going to make sure they have him available when the pennant pressure gets heavy in mid-season.

CROSS FINGERS

Give the Sox a catcher like Bill Dickey and they'd be odds-on favorites to win the flag.

Give the Reds a catcher like Al Lopez and they couldn't miss the National League bunting.

Both Joe Cronin and Bill McKechnie opine their clubs will be as good as the catching and admit their receiving corps will force them to keep their fingers crossed all season.

Tiger Turnout Irks Coach

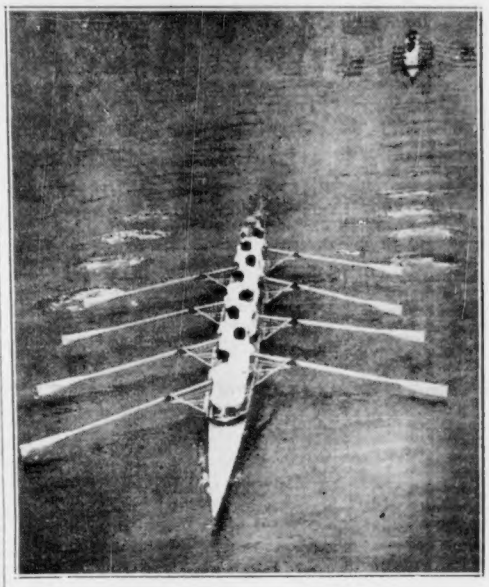
PRINCETON, N. J., April 11 (AP)—Head Coach Tad Wieman began Princeton's football spring training and expressed disappointment at a turnout of only 33 candidates for what he hoped would be a "better Princeton eleven" next fall.

Five varsity lettermen were among the group which started drills on defensive fundamentals. Training will continue, Wieman said, for the next three weeks.

Ivy Choice to Beat Salvatore Bartolo

WORCESTER, April 11—A brisk advance sale indicated a vast throng Friday night when Salvatore Bartolo, recently crowned N. E. featherweight champion, faces Bob "Poison" Ivy in the ten-round main event of Jimmy Villa's boxing show.

Early speculation on the bout foresaw Ivy as a slight favorite to whip the East Boston flash, but the huge outpouring of Noddle Islanders that are preparing to trek towards Worcester to watch the champ, put a different light on the situation.



Season's Upset

A view of the famous Oxford-Cambridge boat race as spectators saw it from Hammersmith Bridge. The Cantabs crew is leading by nearly three lengths. That's the way it finished.

SHUT-IN ASKS RELEASE TO SEE 53RD DERBY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 11 (AP)—All 88-year-old James G. Snyder asks is that he be released from a sanitarium in time to witness his 53rd Kentucky Derby this year.

"I'd hate like mischief to miss it," he said today.

Even if he is dismissed in time, Snyder, who has been a patient since he fractured an arm last October, fears he might have "only one arm" with which to "pull" in his choice for the May 6 classic—El Chico.

"And any race horse fan knows," he explained, "you've got to use both arms and then sometimes get out there and push them (the horses) around too."

Snyder says he's been a horse race fans since the "bug bit me" in 1978, when he saw the famous match between Molly McCarthy and Ten Broeck at Churchill Downs. (Ten Broeck won the $10,000, four-mile heat race.)

"Give a man a horse he can play," he said, "has been my version of the old English ballad ever since I saw my first Derby back in '84. Oh, I'm not a gambler—don't misunderstand me—horses have just been kind of a hobby with me since I saw my first race."

Proud of his record of picking winners—which he said included 27 Derby champions—Snyder said of his Derby choice this year:

"A lot of folks laughed when I said 'Bull Lea' last year. (Bull) Lea finished out of the money.) I suppose a lot more will laugh at El Chico, my selection for this year."

Foxx's Home Run Beats Reds, 4-3

ROCKY MOUNT, N. C., April 11 Jimmy Foxx's home run in the tenth gave the Boston Red Sox a 4 to 3 victory over Cincinnati in a game in which all Red scoring and all but two Sox tallies were by the circuit route.

Johnny Vander Meer, Lee Grissom and Jim Weaver for the Reds matched Jim Bagby and Jakey Wade in allowing but six hits. Goodman, Riggs and Craft homered for the senior loopers, while Williams clouted a round-tripper to start Boston scoring in the second.

The Sox added another in the fourth when Vandeer Meer, making his first start since the team left Florida, walked three, then fed an easy ball to Vosmik for a scratch single.

U. S. YACHTSMEN WIN

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 11 (AP)—The visiting United States team of international one-design yachts gained its first victory in three races against Bermuda sailors by defeating the Bermuda team 21¼ points to 15.

Kelley Picks Dengis to Win B.A.A. Classic

Smilin' Johnny Will Be Fighting For Second Win

Picking Pat Dengis of Baltimore to capture the Patriots' Day marathon from Hopkinton to Boston a week from tomorrow, Johnny Kelley, Arlington boy winner of the 1935 grind, forwarded his entry blank to Tom Kanaly, boosting the entry list to 107 to date.

Along with Kelley's entry and selections for the big race were nine other qualification cards which brought the starting figure over the century mark.

Over the 42-year history of the plod, this spring will mark the ninth time that the Arlington flier has entered the B. A. A. event. His first attempt was in 1928 when he failed to finish. His second try in 1932 again found Kelley unprepared for the long distance.

SECOND IN 1933

In 1933, Johnny placed 37th and a year later served notice to his top form by taking second place behind Dave Komonen of Sudbury. In '35, Kelley won the Unicorn event only to drop to 5th place in defending his title the following season.

Two years ago, he placed second to Walter Young and last year finished third behind Leslie Pawson and Pat Dengis.

In his note to Kanaly, Kelley states that Dengis appears the man to beat. Kelley likes Pawson for second with Lloyd Evans, Montreal, a constant threat to upset the dope.

The list includes Duncan MacCullum, Monarch A. C., Toronto, Canada, who finished fifth in 1937; Oliver C. Galente, Woburn, Mass.; James Lucas, Willard A. C., Cambridge; Freeman H. Lucas, Willard A. C., Cambridge; Frank A. Annis, Northeastern University, Boston; A. Ronald Menzies, Fredericton, N. B., Canada; Clayton C. McKles, Cathedral Club, Boston; Bennie Ahearn, Chelsea; Theodore J. Hoboken, Bridgeport, Ct., and John Muise, East Boston.

11 CANADIAN RUNNERS

With the receipt of the entries of MacCullum from Toronto and Menzies from Fredericton, N. B., it brings the total of Canadian entries in this year's B. A. A. Marathon to 11 at the present time.

Greek Marathoner Awaits Bugle Call

Because of the internal strife in Europe, Stylianos (Call me Stanley) Kyriakides, prominent Greek marathoner, will not compete in the Patriots' Day run this year. Kyriakides competed last year and was intending to make the trip again this season until war threats caused him to change his mind.

It's early to bed and early to rise for Arlington Johnny Kelley, former victor in the Hopkinton to Boston Marathon to be run Patriots' Day. Kelley's entry has been received at B. A. A. headquarters boosting the field to 107 plodders.

War Clouds Force Cancel Air Races

ST. LOUIS, April 11 (AP)—The St. Louis International Air Races scheduled to be held at the Lambert-St. Louis Field, May 29-31, were called off because of the "present international situation."

Thomas N. Dysart, president of the Chamber of Commerce, which was sponsoring the event, said the committee in charge decided that "in view of the present international situation the presence of army and navy flying units could not be guaranteed." The last races were held here in 1937.

PRO BOWLERS HOLD ROLL-OFF SATURDAY

The pro bowlers of New England will climax the American-Record bowling tournament next Saturday afternoon and evening when twenty of the best in New England match ability on the Huntington alleys at which time the prizes to the winners of last week will be awarded.

Actually, the fourth annual tourney rang down last Saturday night the amateur contingent, which was by far the largest, having shut up shop with the exception of the pleasantest part of it all—the disposition of the prizes. Presentation of awards comes Saturday afternoon at 4:30 at the Huntington Club, followed by the professional finals.

During the brilliant competition, six world candlepin records crashed, all six of which have been officially accepted by the New England Bowling Association which sanctioned the title tourney.

The newly risen world record holders and their scores:

AMATEUR DIVISION

Schoolboys' singles—Paul Boucher, Manchester, N. H.	333
Schoolgirls' singles—Dorothy Yando, Fitchburg High	293
Women's singles—Mary Porcemba, Lawrence	326
Men's teams—Central Alleys Five, Cambridge	1687

OPEN DIVISION

Men's teams—Joe Grant's Eagle Alleys Five, Roxbury	1756
Women's teams—Boston Anagrams	1560

In the meanwhile the tourney directors representing the American and Record would like to take this last occasion to thank all those who in so many ways helped make the event such a conspicuous success.

Particular mention must be made of the many kindly donors of prizes, including the Gruen Watch Company of Time Hill, Cincinnati, famous company which provided top amateur prizes for the annual tourney since its inception four years ago; Washington Jewelry Company of Boston, Colonial Provision Company of Boston, Horace Partridge Sporting Goods Company, Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, J. E. Came Company of Sudbury street, Boston, New England Doll and Novelty Company of Boston, Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, The Lobeter Claw of Huntington avenue, Boston, and many others.

DON MEADE CASE GOES BEFORE N.Y. TURF JURY

NEW YORK, April 11 (INS)—The "Don Meade case" goes to the jury today.

Impaneled behind locked doors, the solemn license committee will decide whether Meade, who has thrown himself on the mercy of the court, is to receive a license to ride on the race tracks of New York or whether the celebrated little jockey is to be given back to the Indians—the Seminoles in Florida.

The burden of determining whether "The Riot of the Raceways," suspended and ruled off the turf in March, 1937, should be accepted back into Manhattan's blue-blooded turf society, has been vested with Joseph E. Widener, A. H. Morris and Joseph E. Davis.

If this committee passes favorably on Meade's application for a license it is tantamount to reinstatement.
